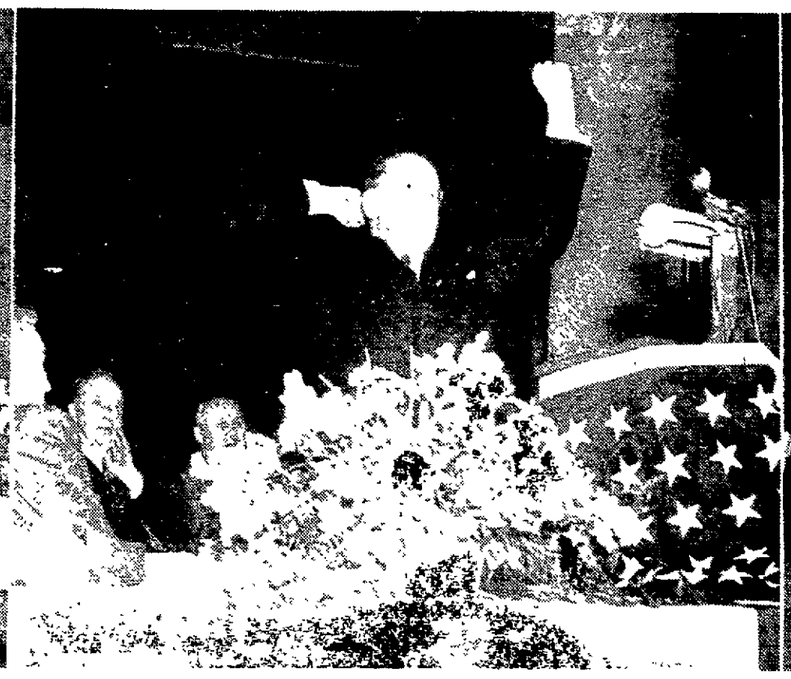
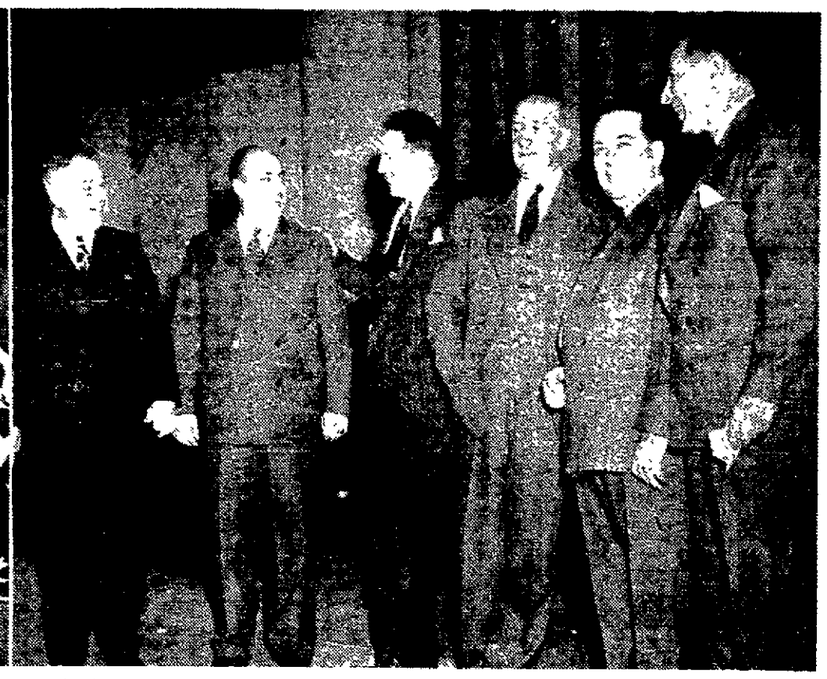
Speakers Stir Audience, Old Friends Get Together

C. I. Weaver, president, Ohio Chamber of Commerce and president of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, praises the joint C. of C. and Mansfield Manufacturers club meeting.



Caught in a characteristic pose, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, minister of the Marble Collegiate church of New York, vigorously makes a point during his talk on "The Art of Living."



C. L. VanDerau, Murray D. Shaffer, Louis Bromfield, C. I. Weaver, Hershel C. Atkinson, and John G. Routzon (left to right), all old friends, enjoy an informal reunion after the banquet.

EMPIRE STEEL ACCORD SIGNED TO JUNE 1ST

Union, Firm Extend Contract 30 Days Past Big Steel Truce Deadline.

The union contract with the Empire Steel corporation has been extended to June 1, assuring until late summer the long-standing labor-management accord in one of Mansfield's principal industries.

William F. Bell, staff representative of District 24, United Steel Workers, said today the extension agreement has been signed by union and company officials. The extension is on the old contract and continues the negotiation period on a new contract 30 days past the May 1 extension recently voted by "Big Steel."

"The extension will give us more time for negotiations," Frank J. Wetzel, president of Local 169, USW, commented. "Last year, we obtained a 15-day extension beyond "Big Steel's" limit and this year, the membership felt that an additional 15 days should be added.

"There will be no strike until June 1 and very possibly not even then," Wetzel continued. "We will file no portal-to-portal suits."

Bell said that the June 1 extension had also been adopted by the Rybolt Heating company of Ashland, one of the steel plants in the district.

Terms of the new contract, to be presented to company officials before the contract expiration date, are still not set, Wetzel said. He said the pattern for negotiations, probably including the requested wage increase would be set by "Big Steel." Approximately 1,000 employes of Empire are union members.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. —(INS)— Married University of Michigan students are becoming parents at a rate of more than one a day. University officials report 40 to 50 babies are being born a month.

Behind Scenes With Nurses In Training Shool

Since the days of Florence Nightingale, who led her little band of 38 nuns to the Crimean war, there's always been a shortage of trained nurses. Sunday's News will take you behind the scenes at General hospital and tell you, with camera and story, how nurses are trained to help the sick and injured.

You also won't want to miss a picture story which gives you an insight into the creative and health-giving activities engaged in by girl scouts in their winter program.

There'll also be a complete page of pictures taken at the joint C. of C.-Manufacturers' club dinner . . . an interesting forum question . . . and many other features you won't want to miss!

1,450 STRONG—Here's the way the Coliseum looked last night when approximately 1,450 persons jammed the hall to hear Dr. Norman Vincent Peale of New York City, Gov. Thomas J. Herbert and other dignitaries speak. The picture was taken from the east end of the Coliseum, looking west. In the background the speakers' table can be seen. The picture was taken by E. E. Roberts and Don Price, Westinghouse photo department, who hung flash bulbs and reflectors in appropriate places to get proper lighting. The lights were synchronized with the camera.

5,100 VOTERS RULED OFF LIST

More than 5,100 voters of Mansfield and Madison township who failed to cast ballots in the general election last fall are ineligible to vote again unless they re-register, the board of elections warned today.

Last year only 1,040 persons—880 in Mansfield and 160 in Madison township—lost their registration status by not exercising the right to vote in the two-year period.

Of the 5,181 voters whose registration cards have been "pulled" by board workers, 3,687 are Mansfield residents. The remainder are Madison township electors. Those who live in the county outside the township are not required to register.

The right to vote of the 5,181 persons was cancelled under state law which provides that all voters subject to registration requirements must vote at least once in two calendar years.

Heaviest loss of voters in the city was recorded in the First and Third wards. In the first ward 949 registration cards were placed in the inactive file and 839 cards were transferred in the Third ward.

Total cancellations in other wards were: Second, 408; Fourth, 449; Fifth, 435; Sixth, 607. Madison township precinct cancellations totaled: A, 230; B, 267; C, 108; D, 162; E, 108; F, 187; G, 117; H, 125; I, 190.

The deadline for voters to re-establish their right to vote in the May 6 primary election is April 8, Underwood reported.

DOPE SPENDING HIGH

NEW YORK —(INS)— Col. Garland Williams, district supervisor of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics estimated today that New York City drug addicts spend $25 million a year on dope. Williams said there were at least 3,000 addicts in New York City and said they spend an average of $25 a day each for drugs.

Banquet Staged With Perfect Circus Flair

By JOHN MINE

They're calling C. L. Van Derau "Mr. Ringling" today. Not because of any connection he might have had with a circus "big top."

It's because of the way he and his colleagues ringmastered 1,450 people into the Coliseum last night for the 35th annual Chamber of Commerce dinner.

Like one of Mr. Ringling's gigantic shows, the dinner was planned, launched and disbanded without a hitch.

Van Derau, as general chairman of the affair, directed the presto-chango that saw a skating rink smoothly transformed into a huge banquet hall — and then just as smoothly, transformed back again.

Hundreds of chairs, scores of tables had to be gathered from all over Mansfield. Lights, the stage, and sound equipment had to be engineered into position.

Dozens of special guests had to be seated properly. Four choral and instrumental groups had to be "staged" and then "de-staged" including one consisting of 76 voices.

There were transportation "headaches." Some special guests came by train, others by bus, auto and plane.

Ushering the hundreds of guests and members to their seats was

TALMADGE WINS ANOTHER ROUND

M'DONOUGH, Ga. —(U.P.)— Superior Court Judge Bond Almand ruled today that Herman Talmadge is legal governor of Georgia in a suit brought by an Atlanta bank to determine whether Talmadge or Lt. Gov. M. E. Thompson is entitled to draw funds from a $100,000 executive department bank account.

It was the second ruling this week that Talmadge had legally been elected governor by the legislature.

Last week a contrary ruling had been issued by Judge Claude Porter in superior court at Rome, Ga., in another of the series of court actions involving the gubernatorial tangle.

On Wednesday of this week Judge Walter Hendrix ruled for Talmadge.

All three cases are being appealed to the state supreme court which is expected to consider the matter in March.

Fulton National bank where the state has $100,000 in executive department funds on deposit brought the suit to determine whether Talmadge or Lt. Gov. Thompson is entitled to draw on the account.

BUDGET SLASH ACTION FACES BITTER FIGHT

Gurney Ready for Last Ditch Battle Against National Defense Fund Cuts.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Chairman Gurney (R., S. D.) of the senate armed service committee announced today he will wage a last ditch battle on the senate floor against a $6,000,000,000 budget slash which he declared would "hamstring the army and navy."

A 50 to 22 vote in favor of the cut by the house-senate budgetary committee threatened President Truman with his first major defeat in the new Republican-controlled congress.

If upheld by the house and senate the committee decision will trim the president's $37,500,000,000 budget to $31,500,000,000.

Senator Brewster (R., Me.) predicted in an interview last night the senate will never agree to the reduction recommended by the committee.

"I voted for it because it was that or no reduction at all," he said, "but I will oppose it on the senate floor and I predict the final figure will be $4,500,000,000."

Knutson Pleased.

However, the committee action was hailed by Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.) of the house ways and means committee as clearing the way for a 20 per cent reduction of personal income taxes this year.

The budget committee action yesterday, taken in a meeting from which the press and public were excluded, is subject to ratification by both houses. The vote will come next Wednesday.

Gurney said the $6,000,000,000 cut contemplates a $1,750,000,000 reduction in army and navy funds and told newsmen "I refuse to vote for anything that will hamstring our armed forces while the peace of the world is unsettled."

Senate Republican Leader Taft, of Ohio, joined Gurney in an effort to hold the committee's budget cutting at a lower figure, but the group flatly rejected all compromises.

It voted down 52 to 23, a motion by Gurney to limit the cut to $4,150,000,000, and defeated 46 to 29 a proposal by Chairman Millikin (R., Colo.) to make it $4,500,000,000.

Just before the committee acted Secretary of State Marshall asserted that failure to vote adequate funds for food in the overseas occupied areas would result in an "intolerable situation."

Jam Coliseum For Top C of C Event In Ohio

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD
(News-Journal City Editor)

Mansfield showed Ohio last night why the city is forging to the front as a business and industrial center.

The city's Chamber of Commerce, biggest in the nation in the 50,000-population class, aided by the Manufacturers' club, staged Ohio's biggest Chamber of Commerce meeting and the biggest dinner party in Mansfield's history.

There was drama all the way through the four-hour session which packed the coliseum with 1,450 business, industrial and professional people and their guests.

There was drama in the challenging, amusing, and heartening talk by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, pastor of the Marble Collegiate church of New York City, principal speaker at the dinner.

The array of speakers would have supplied a half dozen dinner meetings. The precision handling of the meeting amazed the crowd.

When the meeting was over, a policeman who had been on duty at the coliseum was impressed. He said:

"I think that's a tip-off as to what's ahead for Mansfield. We've outgrown the small-town class and are ready to do big things."

And that's the way most of the crowd must have felt after seeing the display of community spirit that brought praise from Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield, C. I. Weaver, president of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, and other distinguished Ohioans who were there as guests. Among these guests was Mansfield's Murray D. Shaffer, Ohio state highway director.

Albert E. Redman, Columbus, representative of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, said the dinner meeting was the largest C. of C. gathering in the history of the organization in Ohio.

Sees Healthy Sign.

Gov. Herbert told the crowd that "You're proving to others in Ohio and the nation that you have the work-together spirit it takes to build a city. If we keep ourselves tolerant of the other person's point of view we can accomplish a great deal."

He said he considered it a healthy sign that there are complaints now of a lack of leadership in the nation because that indicates a growing desire to work together rather than depend on a few to lead the way.

The governor pointed to four major financing problems which the state legislature faces in this session. He listed them as:

1. Adequate appropriations for the schools. (He predicted there would be sufficient funds set up to give the schools what they need); 2. Growing welfare department needs; 3. An expanded highway program to repair road damage that piled up during the war; 4. Readjustment of dislocation between revenue for local and state governments.

Ohio faces a huge task in finding money to meet its growing operating costs, Gov. Herbert said, adding that demands on the state treasury, if approved by the legislature, would exceed half-billion dollars.

Woman (and Their Hats) Add Spice Of Charm and Color to Gay Dinner

By NITA BRANSON

Breaking a precedent does not always end up in as gay and auspicious affair as that of last night when Mansfield women invaded, for the first time, the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner.

Garbed in their best, the women added the spicy condiment of charm, wit and gayety to the occasion.

Said Mrs. H. B. Soulen, wife of the president of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, "It was beautifully planned." Mrs. Soulen was sitting at the table with Mrs. Carlton Fernyak.

Mrs. John Routzon, whose husband is secretary-manager of the C. of C., declared, "It is splendid." Mrs. Routzon was unusually charming in a small gray felt hat, topped with two huge roses, in matching shade, and matching frock.

At the same table was blond Mrs. Glenn Bierly, smartly gowned in a blue frock with a big off-the-face black hat.

Wearing a new brown spring chapeau, Mrs. E. D. Gibson said, laughingly, "It's colossal."

Mrs. Reese Mills said, "It's wonderful."

Mrs. Mill's small black hat sported a jaunty cocque feather that tilted pertly over one eye, and was a pleasing contrast to her blue frock.

Mrs. George Kahl, sitting with her husband and friends, said, "It's all very fine."

Walking through the audience one was amazed at the hats. They presented a panorama of color and style and shape that would have done credit to a John-Frederics collection.

Truman's Mother Fractures Hip

GRANDVIEW, Mo.—(INS)—Mrs. Martha Truman, 94-year-old mother of President Truman, was reported "resting well" today, after suffering a fractured right hip in a fall at her home in Grandview.

The fracture was revealed yesterday in X-ray pictures when she was taken by ambulance to a physician at Belton, Mo., for treatment. She was then returned to her home.

Soulen Succeeds Mills As C. of C. President

Harry B. Soulen, vice president and factory manager of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, will head the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce in 1947, succeeding Reese Mills.

Millard H. Pryor, president of the Barnes Manufacturing company, will direct the Manufacturers' club. Soulen headed the club last year.

Announcements of the elections were made last night at the combined dinner meeting of the two organizations in the coliseum by Mills.

Soulen is the 25th president of the C. of C. H. L. Reed first held the office in 1907-08. Pryor is the Manufacturers' club's 27th president. C. K. King was the first, holding the office in 1919.

Soulen, a veteran of the first World war, has been affiliated with the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company for 10 years. He has been active in Mansfield civic and business affairs and served two terms as president of the Manufacturers' club.

Pryor, a commander in the navy during the recent war, is chairman of Mansfield's naval armory advisory committee.

Other C. of C. officers for the year are Dean W. Dickerson, first vice president; W. L. Faulkner, second vice president; Pryor, third vice president; C. H. Keating, national councillor; C. H. Huston, alternate councillor; Paul M. Eliot, treasurer, and John J. Routzon, secretary-manager.

Careful Buying Important From Dry-Cleaning Angle

Every year at this time the fashion and textile people customarily hold a number of showings. So far, however, one of the most interesting displays has been that in New York City—of the National Institute of Cleaning & Dyeing, whose 5,000 members do most of the country's annual billion dollars (1946) worth of drycleaning.

The aim of this exhibit was to point out that, while the cleaner's art has reached a high degree of perfection, it is still possible to "design fabrics or garments which no one can clean without damage." In other words, the Institute stressed, while by far the majority of textile articles may be cleaned satisfactorily it is well to watch out for the undrycleanable exceptions. Once they become soiled, the only alternatives are wearing them soiled or discarding them.

There was the red blouse on display, for instance, which was obviously dependent on drycleaning. Yet the manufacturer had decorated it with plastic sequins of a material (polystyrene) that softens in dry solvent so it is now a total loss. No other method of effective soil removal could have been used. From the moment a customer purchases such a garment, she is doomed to disappointment and loss.

Another outstanding example was an attractive, heavily sized regenerated rayon taffeta dress. This had been ruined by a cleaner's customer who spilled half a glass of water down the front. The water removed the sizing. Shrinkage resulted and—in this instance—bleeding of the dye as well. Nothing could be done. Had the garment been sent to the cleaner—even barring such an accident—he could not have accepted it, however. There is simply no way of cleaning such things. Yet raincoats of this fabric have actually been sold!

Unserviceable buttons and belts have long been a source of headaches to cleaners and public alike. Many are fastened together with glues which dissolve so that they come apart. Others are made with non-fast dyes. Still others dissolve or soften.

Even where the cause of unserviceability is known to a cleaner, there is often little he can do. One plant was sent a white silk blouse on which the design was hand painted in colors readily affected by water. Wetcleaning was called for by the condition of the fabric but this would have destroyed the design. The garment had to be returned uncleaned to its owner, to whom it is useless in its soiled condition.

This last is important. It pays, therefore, to buy with care and to remember that fabrics and garments exist which simply cannot be drycleaned.

Dinner Dress Is Optional For Hostess

By EMILY POST

Questions that I have answered but which continue to be asked, are these: "When the hostess invites people either to dinner or buffet supper (1) should it be necessary to tell them whether to dress or not? (2) Is it correct for the hostess to wear a dinner dress—not a hostess gown—when the guests are not dressing.

(1) This depends upon the custom of your community and your personal friends. If they go to parties in day clothes and you want them to come in evening dress, it would be best to ask them to do so. If, on the other hand, everybody does go in evening clothes and this is what you want them to do, you say nothing. (2) The hostess should not wear clothes that are out of key with those of her guests. If they are wearing day clothes, her own dress, if very simple, could have a long skirt but not an off-the-shoulder top.

* * *

Follow the Conventional Rule.

Dear Mrs. Post: My son has become engaged to a co-ed at his college. I don't know the girl, but he expects to bring her home soon. Her parents live quite a distance from here. The young people are planning to finish their education before getting married, so in all probability we will have plenty of time to meet. But would it be impolite to let things go on as they are and not write the other mother? If I should write, please tell me what to say.

Not only would it be correct, but also I think you would find the general situation more pleasing if you wrote to the other mother. The longer you wait, the harder it will be to do so and the greater the breach between you. Being friendly certainly makes for greater happiness all around—always!

Books for the Younger Set

Just right for the two year old and fun for others is the A B C AND COUNTING BOOK by Phyllis Fraser. The pictures for the letters are large, and partly colored. This is an alphabet song, and a counting song. Also, there are suggestions to help the parent who wants to teach his child how to print the letters.

One day a little angel leaned too far over the edge of the cloud he was playing on. Down he fell, right onto a little rain cloud and got his wings all wet. He didn't care, he had a lovely ride, floating over the earth on the soft, fluffy cloud. Then the cloud burst and down dropped the angel child into a tree. His blue robe caught on the branch and held him. Peter and Patty were playing under the tree and they heard him. Imagine their surprise at seeing an angel child in their tree. They got a ladder and helped him down, they pinned up his torn robe and even gave him a bath. Then they played hide-and-seek. Do you know what? The little angel hid and if Peter and Patty couldn't find him he came out to help them hunt! So they decided to swing. They swang the little angel higher and higher and higher until the rope broke and the swing with the little angel child on it sailed far away into the blue sky. I'll tell you a secret, he came back.

Patty's room was all done over, new wallpaper and new slip covers. It looked lovely except for the empty space over the toy shelf. That space needed a picture. PATTY PAINTS A PICTURES by Laura Bannon tells how the picture came to be. Patty decided to paint a picture herself, of Happy, her little kitten. It didn't come out right so Patty took Happy to her drawing class in the Museum on Saturday morning. Happy disappeared! Do you know what happens in a museum when a cat is loose?

ANIMALS FOR YOU TO MAKE by Phyllis Martin gives directions for making and painting twenty different animals out of wood. The directions are clear and easy to follow. The tools and equipment required are not complicated and expensive. Gear is an easy way to have fun, make presents and give other people pleausre all at once.

MAN—THE MAKER by Lyttle and Lamarque is a picture history of the things man has invented through the years. Some of them have made life easier, and helped people to live longer. Some of man's inventions have been to make war more horrible, but can also be used to improve living conditions. Many of the illustrations are old wood-cuts or engravings, some are very modern industrial photographs. Here, in photos and other illustrations, is the story of fire, gunpowder, wheels, steam, electricity, radio, medicine and other forces that are vital factors in our lives. We may see the events that will carry Man-the maker on to newer and greater inventions.

Bonny belonged to Nat but when he went into the navy it was Davy's job to look after her. He did a pretty good job, though his school work suffered. Then Bonny had puppies and Bonny died, as did all the puppies but one. Father said that that one would have to be killed too, an orphan pup was almost impossible to raise. Davy begged until his father consented to let the puppy live, IF Davy would take care of it. So began the life of BONNY'S BOY, who must be saved for Nat, and must be a dog he'd be proud of. Dr. Mason helped, Tubby stayed after school for him, and Davy worked hard. Of course, Mr. Hooker didn't help, he had more than one mean trick to use when it was proven that Bonny's Boy had a pedigree and began to win blue ribbons. Bonny's Boy was the finest dog ever, and he was indeed a dog that Nat could be proud of, also a dog that Davy loved with all his heart. And BONNY'S BOY by Rechnitzer is one of the finest dog stories to come into the library since Lassie.

Schools Planning Russian Courses

NEW YORK—(INS)—A proposal to introduce a Russian language course in at least five New York City high schools was under consideration today by school officials.

Dr. Theodore Huebener, director of foreign languages in the city schools said that familiarity with the Russian language was becoming increasingly necessary to Americans. He added it would be a "real gesture of good will to Russians."

YOWLER BECOMES CURIOUS

To self-esteem it is a blow
To find that you so little know.
—Old Mother Nature.

Of all the independent people in the Green Forest none is more independent than Prickly Porky the Porcupine. He is so independent that he pays little attention to his neighbors big or little. He knows that because of the sharp, barbed little spears called quills with which he is covered he has little to fear from even the largest of the Green Forest hunting folk. Prickly Porky knows that among eaters of meat only one who is starving, so hungry that he doesn't care what happens if he can get meat, is likely to try to harm him.

Now Prickly Porky sat in a crotch of a tree beside the yard made in the Green Forest by Lightfoot the Deer and his family. He didn't know that above him in that same tree was Yowler the Bobcat. Had he known, it probably would have made no difference to him. But having Prickly Porky there below him made all the difference in the world to Yowler. He wanted to get down out of that tree, and he couldn't pass Prickly Porky without danger of brushing against some of those little spears. Not even a good dinner was worth that.

Presently he stopped and began digging in the snow at one side.

He could leap to the ground from just above Prickly Porky, but not without alarming Mrs. Lightfoot and her children lying down in the yard below, and that would end all chance of a dinner of tender Deer meat. He must catch Mrs. Lightfoot lying down. Then she could not use those sharp-edged hoofs he dared not face.

For a while Prickly Porky sat in that crotch with his back to the trunk, fretfully whining and grumbling to himself. He was having a good time. Yowler wasn't. No, sir, he wasn't having a good time at all.

Yowler looked over to the Deer. The young Deer were beginning to get uneasy. They had been lying down long enough. Two of them got to their feet, but their mother lay there still contentedly chewing her cud. She wouldn't lie there much longer. Yowler was sure of that. And once she was on her feet he wouldn't dare attack her. He knew, too, that Lightfoot would hear the noise of a fight and come to her aid.

He looked back at Prickly Porky. Why didn't that Porcupine do something? Why didn't he make up his mind where he wanted to go and then go? Ha! He was moving again. Perhaps this time he would get out of the way.

He did. With a scratching of claws on bark and a rustling of quills, he backed down that tree to the snow-covered ground. Mrs. Lightfoot heard him and hastily got to her feet facing that way, her big ears spread wide and a startled look in her large soft eyes. Then she recognized Prickly Porky and was no longer alarmed. There was nothing to fear from this prickly neighbor. She turned her back to him and began to move away along one of the paths that made up the yard. The others followed her.

Yowler snarled deep in his throat. It was a snarl of disappointment and rage. Disappointment and rage often come together. There was no longer need of keeping quiet. His chance was gone, and all on account of that stupid fellow who didn't know his own mind.

The next story: "Yowler Is Disappointed."

The Music Corner

MARY HOFFMAN

I have been sitting at my desk and thinking how fortunate are we who enjoy serious music. There is much on the radio that is trashy, but there is a wealth also of great music, and so long as we are capable of turning the dial we can make our own selections.

Tomorrow the New York Philharmonic-Symphony has a guest conductor Bruno Walter, one of the greatest conductors of modern times. The orchestra will play "A 'Faust' Overture" by Wagner, "Variations on a Theme by Haydn" by Brahms, and Beethoven's "Symphony No. 7 in A Major."

There is the story of the boy who was asked how many symphonies Beethoven wrote, and who replied, "Three: the Third, the Seventh and the Ninth." When I hear the Seventh, which is not one of the famous three, I think of Theodore Thomas' definition: "Popular music is familiar music." I once arranged the theme of one of the movements of this symphony for a little church orchestra. Ever since, this one has been one of my favorites—I know it better than the others. (WJR—3:00 p. m.)

At 5:00 p. m. WTAM brings the NBC Symphony under Toscanini in the second half of Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliette," with Gladys Swarthout, John Garris and Nicola Moscona in the solo parts.

For those who do not have to get to work early, CBS offers some interesting programs from 11:30 p. m. to midnight. On Sunday evening Alfredo Antonini conducts the Columbia Concert Orchestra on the "Music You Know" program. On Monday evening the same orchestra has as soloist Winifred Smith, coloratura. Tuesday evening brings the Rochester Civic Orchestra, conducted by Guy Fraser Harrison. The program will be composed of Elgar's "Nursery Suite" and Weber's "Preciosa Overture."

Wednesday night at the same hour Heitor Villa-Lobos, one of Brazil's greatest composers, will conduct the CBS Symphony Orchestra in a program of his own works. This is the "Invitation to Music" program. Thursday the Juilliard School of Music (one of the best music schools in the country) presents an instrumental and vocal group.

CBS "Gateways to Music" at 5 p. m. Tuesdays presents this week a program entitled "Colonial America." Next week the program will be "Drums and Ivories," and the following week "Music from the North."

Opera News lists 57 operas to be given in 14 cities during the spring tour. Cleveland will get Lakme, April 7; Lohengrin, April 8; Faust, April 9; Traniata, April 10; Hansel and Gretel, April 11 matinee, with Boris Godunoff in the evening; Madame Butterfly, April 12 matinee, with Aida in the evening. More about them later.

Barclay on Bridge

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

All Reach Same Place.

Ordinarily, the place you eventually reach is determined partly by the factor of where you start and partly by that of what course you then follow. That is just as true of contract bridge bidding as it is of traveling over the seas or the terrain. But there are times when it seems to make no difference what you do; you will reach the same place as if you started differently and traveled in a different direction. That is so with some bridge hands in a duplicate; all pairs get in the same contract, but by widely different methods. And maybe all take the same tricks.

If you had asked any of the players at those tables what bidding system they used, they would all have answered about the same. Yet notice the terrific variation in the way they actually applied their method. You may standardize the meaning of the messages conveyed by various bids. But you will never standardize the messages that different players flash across the table, for the simple reason that you cannot standardize human beings.

There were a few more slight variations in the remaining tables of the nine-table game where the shuffle produced this deal. Every North-South pair, however, wound up in 3-No-Trumps and took eleven tricks — three in spades, two in hearts, four in diamonds and two in clubs, no matter what opening lead was made. To all of which anyone might quite properly ask: "So what?"

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Feb. 16.

Sunday's horoscope encourages the seeking of diversion and relaxation in the romantic, social, domestic and cultural vocations or avocations rather than in any commonplace or sordid field of activity. Even in purely intimate and personal contacts there is danger from deceit and treachery.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a tricky year, in which the best interests and objectives may be subject to duplicity, suspicion and illicit manipulation. While the social, domestic and affectional relations are likely to be active and alluring, yet these, too, bespeak treachery and tantrums.

A child born on this day may have some sound objectives and ideas, business, finances, and social, but its judgment may be obscure or confused.

For Monday, Feb. 17.

Monday's astrological forecast shows a sudden and dramatic boost in the direction of high-powered objectives, with bold, audacious and ingenious strokes of initiatives and enterprise, possibly rising to great heights and achievements. These should be founded on practical and tested bases and facts.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of high tension and accomplishment, with new interests and projects moving at accelerated tempo toward advanced goals. Strokes of genius, originality and audacity may carry on to dramatic achievements. However, such major objectives should have sound and provable techniques, constructive and practical, with facts and not confused theories as foundation.

A child born on this day should have spectacular talents, ambitions and skills, with great expectations. However, its mental equipment is not to be relied upon, being tricky and misleading.

PAGE FOUR MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1947

Drive carefully tomorrow—have regard for the lives of others even if you don't care anything about your own.

This has about topped "special events" weeks—with Edison's and Lincoln's birthdays, Valentine day, Boy Scout doings, and the Chamber of Commerce annual meeting.

"Tact" is defined as ability to: "Be brief, politely; be aggressive, smilingly; be emphatic, pleasantly; be positive, diplomatically; be right, graciously."

Biggest and Best C of C Meeting

OUTSTANDING impression of last night's Chamber of Commerce dinner-meeting was the immensity of accomplishment and the perfection of planning which overcame obstacles and made such an outstanding community event possible.

Having reached the largest membership of any Chamber of Commerce in the United States among cities up to 50,000 in population, it was fitting that this meeting should reflect in attendance and quality the eminence of that topmost position.

The handicap of finding and adapting a place for a dinner-meeting with an attendance of 1,400 was overcome by such a combination of initiative, energy and determination as Mansfield has never before experienced in this particular field of activity.

While the Coliseum has served many useful purposes, it is not primarily adapted to large dinner-meetings for which many other cities have adequate facilities. Last night's meeting, however, proved that it can occasionally be turned to this use when necessity requires, and when enthusiastic interest develops the leadership and co-operation necessary to make ready for such a gathering.

Back of the appearance of ease with which every detail of last night's meeting was handled—in seating arrangements, serving, and presentation of the exceptional program of music and speeches—was the tremendous task of preparation, which required competent engineering, complete grasp of a wide variety of details, and marvelous co-ordination of committees and working forces.

Elsewhere in today's News-Journal the story of the meeting is told in detail—with mention of the excellent music, the inspiring talks, the presence of distinguished guests, the attractiveness of the scene and the enthusiasm of the audience.

Here it need only be said, by one who has been an interested observer of Mansfield Chamber of Commerce progress through its thirty-five years of service to this community, that last night's meeting proves—if proof be needed—that Mansfield can accomplish—by united effort—whatever it sets out to do.

Attention Being Given Heart Ailments

THIS WEEK, in addition to other things, has been designated as "National Heart week" by the American Heart association—the purpose being to take stock of the causes and prevalence of this No. 1 killer.

It is startling to have attention directed to the fact that, in 1945, diseases of the heart and blood vessels (arteriosclerosis) killed more people in the United States, in all age brackets, than the total of the next five causes of the largest number of deaths.

It is estimated that more than 3,700,000 people in the United States are victims of heart ailments in varying degrees, and more than a half million deaths annually are attributed to this cause.

Mansfield, like other communities, has been shocked by the number of sudden deaths from heart trouble, and it is noteworthy that overwork, worry, and irregular hours of work and rest place the medical profession above all others in the number of heart fatalities.

In any vocation, however, it should be taken into account that overweight, overwork and overworry put extra tension and work on the heart. The suggestion is: "Work hard, but rest and sleep plenty and regularly. Take life and its problems calmly, with more faith and less worry. AND STOP OVEREATING!"

Remember that the heart can never take "time out" for rest.

Listen, 'Experience' Is Speaking

EXPERIENCE is credited with being an excellent teacher—although sometimes quite expensive. The "voice of Experience," however, seems to have been unheard by authorities of Madison high school, judging from report of the incident of the school safe having been blown open one night this week and several hundred dollars stolen.

Information is to the effect that this school building has been burglarized "nearly a dozen times in the past 18 years"—and Experience would surely have warned against leaving any considerable amount of money in the school safe.

Banks provide facilities for safe-keeping of either public or private funds in excess of immediate needs, and it may be wondered why officials—or anyone, in fact—take the chance of losing money by failing to open a bank account instead of leaving currency or cash in an office, school, church or home safe.

Expansion of World Trade Vital Need

FREER world trade is a vital necessity, says an important business group, the Pacific American Steamship association.

"If we raise our duties," said Albert W. Gatov, executive director, at the annual meeting, "we'll get the same treatment from the rest of the world. This was our experience in the Smoot-Hawley days when 71 countries shut us out of their markets."

Whatever earlier justification there may have been for barring imports to equalize exports, passing of the era of isolationism makes further resort to this form of "protection" impractical, as encouragement of world trade is now recognized as essential to success of United Nations objectives.

GEORGIA'S STITUE OF LIBERTY

Moley Views Two-Term Limit As Important Safety Measure

By RAYMOND MOLEY

WHEN the two-terms-for-presidents amendment is debated in the senate, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt will inevitably be discussed. This is a pity, for the issue is no longer a Roosevelt issue.

It has to do with what people can learn from the long past to guide them in the long future. It is an issue of human nature, of political prudence and of sound government.

Let us concede that a president who might next seek a third term could be a liberal and a beneficent man. But good or bad, he would enjoy advantages in seeking a third term which would contradict the principle of a free election.

He would have a horde of supporters whose chief interest would be not the welfare of the country, but the security of their jobs. These supporters would inevitably be the possessors of power drawn from money and privileges which belong to the nation.

All this power would work to prevent a truly free choice. Under such a circumstance, a free convention would be out of the question. Over and over, history has shown that the national convention of the party which has the presidency is a sham. Any president can renominate himself. The election which follows may be free and it may not. Certainly, immense advantages are on the side of a president who has served two successive terms.

Those advantages do not derive from logic or from demonstrated fitness. They derive from the possession of the property and authority of the people's government. That is why self-perpetuation in office is so unfair and so dangerous.

Long tenure of office so sharpens the will to hold on that intellectual integrity deteriorates. That was clearly shown when so many of those who voted in the senate in 1928 against the principle of a third term found it expedient, in 1940, to find arguments to support a third term.

The experience of Mexico offers light on this question. A series of usurpers unarmed dictators followed the long regime of Diaz. But under prohibition against two successive terms, elections have become more orderly.

In Mexican tradition has been established a firm basis of a constitutional prohibition. Without that constitutional bar, it is quite probable that Mexico by now would be saddled with an indispensable man. For it would have been easy to manufacture reasons for successive re-elections and to find the power to gain them. As it is, several ex-presidents are still alive—harmless and, we hope, happy in retirement.

The real point is the effect of power on those who possess it. Power does not always corrupt, but it is so likely to do so that a heavy burden of proof is on those who oppose this amendment.

And the circumstances which make a change inadvisable are so unlikely to be present at the end of two terms that it is best to play safe.

A tradition once broken is a weak defense against a great danger. The two-term tradition now needs constitutional support.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"No one ever buys anything. . . . They're always just looking."

Elsie Robinson

Lisn World: "Don't Cheat at Solitaire."

I WATCED him playing solitaire the der night.

Queer exfience. There he sat—a smart and successful man, with powerful wit enough to battle his way of any jam. A man who need ner be trapped by the crookedness of others or the weakness in himself.

Yet every little while, when he didn't think was watching, he'd cheat at solitaire.

Shift the cards, just a little, until they lede his advantage. And then beam al boast when he won.

A curios sight. It set me thinking I've heard lately that this man is beginning to slip—that people are beginning to find some strange flaw in his performance.

AND I WONDER IF THAT ISN'T BECUSE HE CHEATS AT SOLITIRE.

For, of orse, he's playing solitaire all the time. Not a solitary game with a deck of cards, but a game of life in the secret places of his own heart.

A game with his own character—

A game in which he's both dealer and player—

AND WHAT DOES HE DO IF HE DOESN'T LIKE THE HAND HE DEALS HIMSELF?

Does he face the facts frankly? Does he acknowledge that he isn't holding a royal flush or a full house? Does he admit that, at times, he only a couple of deuces?

OR DOS HE MANIPULATE THE CARS UNTIL THEY SUIT HIS EGOTISM?

Does he refuse to face himself as he really is? Does he refuse to judge his acts for what they really are? Does he "pretty up" things with lot of high-powered excuses and slick alibis? Does he, in short, cheat at solitaire?

I'll bet he does.

And I'll also bet that that is why he's slipping.

For that's why most of us slip in the game of life.

It isn't because someone else has stacked the deck against us—IT'S BECASE WE STACK THE DECK AGINST OURSELVES.

We won't admit we're holding weakness. We refuse to see that there is danger ahead.

WE KID OURSELVES INTO BELIEVING THAT THINGS AREN'T WHAT THEY ARE.

Others may criticize us—may say we're lazy, bad tempered, ignorant, silly.

Such things are weak cards—they'll lose the game for any man.

BUT WE WON'T ADMIT TO OURSELVES THAT WE HOLD THOSE CARDS.

We say that other people don't understand us. We say we really love to work—only we've never had a good chance. We say we're really amiable—it's the other fellow who is irritating. We say that we "meant well" even if we did seem to be mean or silly.

SO WE CHEAT AT SOLITAIRE. WE FIX UP [illegible] UNTIL IT SEEMS TO BE A WINNING HAND.

But sooner or later, life will call our bluff.

You can't really win with bad cards—either at solitaire or in life.

Qun of Them All.

The Chi, Ohio, high school girl who led her way to the pie-making championship of the state has acquired a title she can never lose. If she'd won a mere beauty contest her fame would have faded with the years. But who ever heard of a good pie baker growing less apt as time goes on?

There is a moral in this—one which promoters of beauty contests might well study. Feminine beauty appeals briefly to the male eye, while perfect pie goes as deep as the human stomach and appeals to everybody.

Everybody in America, that is. Foreign ides of pie, if any, may be dismissed with contempt.

As that homely philosopher, Abe Martin, once expressed it: "Nobody ever scored a good cook." And of gol cooks the pie expert is the qum.—Toledo Blade.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Portal Suits, Taxes, Army Needs Claiming Congressional Attention

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE portal-to-portal pay dispute, involving some $4,800,000,000, may wind up in congress and the Supreme Court for final settlement. That course will suit Federal District Judge Frank A. Picard, who last week dismissed the Mount Clemens Pottery Co., case which was the basis for hundreds of other portal pay suits on file from coast to coast. Both government and labor union attorneys had planned appealing the case, regardless of Picard's ruling.

Industry's fears that the opinion might not be iron-clad prompted calls for quick revision of the wage-hour act. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers said employers "still face a threat of bankruptcy over unjust claims arising under the wage-hour act" and called for correction of its ambiguities and uncertainties.

Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the Republican policy group, said portal pay was one of two issues given top priority after a conference with Rep. Joseph Martin (R-Mass), speaker of the house. A senate judiciary subcommittee already has completed hearings on bills to ban or limit portal claims. A house judiciary subcommittee has nearly completed its hearings.

Split Over Tax Cuts.

Meanwhile, Republicans evidenced a widening split over taxes. Sen. Taft tossed a monkey wrench into plans of house Republicans for a quick cutback in income taxes by announcing he would fight any reduction effective before July 1.

This would permit only half of the $3,500,000,000 reduction which had been sought by making a 20 per cent cut effective over the full calendar year. Rep. Harold Knutson (R-Minn.) chairman of the house ways and means committee, is sticking to his promise of a tax bill making reductions retroactive to January 1.

Another factor working against speedy tax slashes is the unsettled international situation and almost universal acceptance of the belief that the United States must remain militarily strong until adequate safeguards are set up.

Preparedness Costs.

Rep. Walter G. Andrews (R-NY), chairman of the house armed services committee, came out flatly against a contemplated slash of $2,000,000,000 in the president's $11,200,000,000 army-navy budget allotment until Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, army chief of staff, has an opportunity to state his views.

Still another factor is the declaration of Secretary of State George C. Marshall, in his first press conference a week ago that this country must back up its foreign policy with real military power until there is "peace with a dependable basis of collective security."

Sec. Marshall stated bluntly he did not agree with the Russian view that atomic energy control can be dealt with as part of general disarmament. In any case, he said, there can be no disarmament until there is international security.

Universal military training on a basis that provides actual protection for this country is a prime necessity at once, he declared.

At Home

Medicine on the March.

Virus diseases like infantile paralysis, sleeping sickness and influenza have the faculty of going underground after losing a battle to medical science and thus escaping extermination, University of California researchers have found.

In their dormant state, these viruses cause latent infections which do not produce outward symptoms of disease. Yet when conditions are favorable they again come into the open.

Dr. Karl F. Meyer, virus expert, said there were three kinds of latent infections: (1) those which take root in a person causing an illness so mild the victim is not aware he is infected; (2) those in which disease organisms remain in the patient but lie dormant, causing no symptoms whatever, until the victim's system becomes susceptible and then contracts a serious illness, and (3) viruses which continue to live on the patient while he is recovering from the disease.

One promising approach to understanding latent infections, Dr. Meyer said, lies in learning more about changes in a patient's system at the time viruses change from mild parasites into rampaging invaders.

The navy has unveiled its D-558 Skystreak, a turbo-jet propelled "flying test tube." The craft, designed to probe aerodynamic secrets of transsonic speed of 550 to 850 miles an hour, will make its first speed trials this spring.

The power of one of the army's biggest bombers, the tailless Flying Wing, designed to carry five tons of bombs 10,000 miles, is being nearly tripled with jet engines.

"Babe" Is Remembered.

Babe Ruth, baseball's homerun king, retired more than a decade ago but he still is remembered by the fans and a host of kids who never saw him smash one over the outfield wall.

Hospitalized after an operation on his neck, the Babe was deluged with hundreds of telegrams and greeting cards on his 52nd birthday. Wired Connie Mack: "Hope you pass my 84 years. May God bless you for all you have done for the youth of America." Jack Dempsey sent greetings and added: "Keep your chin up and keep punching."

Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler visited Ruth's hospital room. "Babe, you're Mr. Baseball," he said. "I'm going to say a prayer for you. God bless you and may you get well soon."

Abroad

An Industrial Dunkerque.

Britons, famed for their ability to "take it," faced up to one of the gravest crises in their history. The fuel shortage did what Hitler's death-dealing blitz had been unable to—paralyze Britain.

Over half the industry of England and Wales was shut down. Four million workers were idle; many went back on the dole for the first time since the prewar depression. Deep snow and one of the winter's severest cold waves sifted into thousands of homes, cut off part of each day from coal and electricity.

The Labor government, which converted the coal mines from private to state ownership on January 1, called the drastic conservation program necessary to avert "complete disaster."

Confusion and chaotic conditions prevailed in many areas at first, but the voluntary cooperation appeal proved effective.

Mightier Than the Sword.

In the red-gold-and-plush chamber of the French foreign office in Paris, delegates from the five German satellite countries gathered reluctantly to write their names. They were fateful signatures committing their countries to give away much territory, a large part of their defense forces and $1,330,000,000 in reparations to 20 victor nations.

The five were Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland. The victors were the Big Four—the United States, Britain, Russia and France—and 16 other Allied nations.

Agents of some of the vanquished states were dissatisfied—but they signed.

Inflation In China.

China, torn between warring Nationalist and Chinese Communist factions, faces the very real danger of complete economic collapse. Since the announcement three weeks ago of withdrawal of American forces and mediators, Chinese currency has been in a dizzy toboggan.

Zooming inflation, with economic chaos just around the corner, apparently plays directly into the hands of the Communists, who count heavily on the bankruptcy of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nanking government in their struggle for power.

An increasingly large segment of foreign and Chinese businessmen see a sweeping purge as the only effective remedy for debilitated China.

Quotes

Warren R. Austin, American delegate to the United Nations Security Council: "We are nearer (to real security and disarmament) than we ever have been before."

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, comments on Polish elections: "A world war which started in behalf of Polish liberty, can scarcely be considered adequately won until Polish liberty is something more than a rigged and terrorized election."

In Short

Presented: To the Library of Congress, original manuscript of Abraham Lincoln's humble "Autobiography" written in 1859.

Estimated: By the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, that this year's domestic food supply will be as large, but slightly more costly than last year's, with more beef, sugar, cereals, fish and canned fruits available, less lamb, dried fruits and milk in all forms.

Granted: By the N. Y. State Supreme Court, permission for Wayne William Lonergan, 4, heir to the multi-million dollar fortune of his slain mother, to drop the name of Lonergan and be known as William Anthony Burton.

Farmer's Diary: "The Greatest Dimension."

EVERY year, my father and older brothers drove the young cattle around the ridge and over the mountain to graze there all summer. Cow bells made hollow music as the herd started out, trailed by the housedog. I sat on the porch and watched because I was too small, they said, to go along.

The day was long until toward evening, when the panting dog reappeared first, and then the three others, a tired procession on the stony road.

Only after supper, their hunger appeased by country ham, mashed potatoes and gravy, fresh lettuce and home made bread with honey, my brothers told of all they had seen on the journey.

Giant ledges of sandstone rock, overgrown with mosses and lichens. Acres of blooming rhododendron and laurel where the uneven stones were upon the surface. Ferns dripping from the crevices of the rocky banks, or unfolding their knobby fronds against fallen logs. New birch leaves and bark that were sweet and pleasant eating. White blooms of teaberry or wintergreen—and the scarlet fruit with pulp as white as snow.

Bears and deers and pheasants and wild turkeys, they had seen—and red speckled trout in the pools of dashing Maple Run.

Impressed more than they knew, that night I saw in my dreams the wonderful things they had spoken of, with greater zest and more color than could be possible in reality. And always I resolved that next time I would go along, to see for myself what lay beyond the top of our ridge.

Finally the time came. I was allowed to go. Stepping in my father's tracks, so far as my short legs were able, I followed the cattle over the mountain, and paused upon the top to look down upon the barns and houses, far off across the many colored fields and valleys—and then far on ahead to where one mountain top seemed almost against the other and lofty summits made notches against the sky.

I felt very deeply the bigness of it all. I felt very small. But I was overflowing with joy because it was good to be there—to be even an insignificant part of something so vast and grand. The odors of earth and teaberry that clung to my boyish fingers still seem a part of a panting climb that leads to supreme satisfaction. I feel sometimes that perhaps the greatest dimension of one's life is that part which lies beyond what he can see.

From the urge to see what lies beyond a closed door, around a distant turn of the road — from such secret urges are born the most wonderful art, the charm of music, the deep human emotion of literature. "Life—measured not in years, but in heart throbs."

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen

Vaccines For "Catching" Diseases.

NOTHING better illustrates the revolutionary changes made possible by the discovery of the sulfonamide drugs and penicillin than the treatment of pneumonia before and after these preparations came into use.

Before, no very effective direct attack on the disease itself could be made and the doctor was forced to use what was known as "supportive" treatment. That is, he did everything possible to make the patient more comfortable and to conserve his strength for the fight that he, and he alone, could make against the invading germs.

Serums Proved Helpful.

Later, serums were found which proved helpful but now all of these things have been more or less discarded in favor of the sulfonamides and penicillin, which work directly to destroy the harm that the pneumonia germs do and thus end the illness more speedily.

But life-saving as they are in this regard, these wonder-working chemicals can do little to curb what we think of as the ordinary catching diseases of childhood, with the possible exception of scarlet fever.

Both the sulfonamide drugs and penicillin have also been employed in the treatment of scarlet fever and other streptococcic infections of the throat.

It would appear that in these conditions, as in pneumonia, penicillin often gives the best results. If the penicillin is administered for at least six days the streptococci quickly disappear from the throat and do not occur. Furthermore, such treatment seems to be helpful in avoiding complications.

Neither the sulfonamide drugs nor penicillin seems to have much, if any, value in the treatment of measles, nor does there appear to be any other drug which has any marked effect on this condition.

Hence, in so far as measles is concerned, the main efforts must be in the direction of prevention.

Use Vaccine Early.

Whooping cough causes more deaths in young children than any other catching disease, particularly in infants under one year of age. In order to help prevent these deaths, children should be given whooping cough vaccine early in life, at the third month, according to many physicians and always by the time they are six months of age.

Perhaps the time will come when we shall have safe and sure cures, similar to penicillin, for such diseases as whooping cough and diphtheria, but until we do, all children should be protected by preventive vaccines and serums. Diphtheria could almost be banished from the earth if every child were given diphtheria toxoid by the age of 8 or 9 months.

Notes On An Octopus

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — I couldn't help it. I tried to pay attention to a dignified and somberly-dressed citizen denouncing the closed shop before the U. S. senate, but I kept thinking of his blue-eyed octopus with the fire engine red complexion and the brass joints.

He mentioned the iniquities of unionism, but there must be something wrong with my brain. I remember better how he jelled Claudette Colbert in a 40-foot bath tub of hot cottage cheese.

Once I went yachting with him and a kindly host he was, too, after I took off my shoes so I wouldn't scratch the teakwood decks. He was the only man I ever knew who never worried about the presence of a chair when he sat down. He just sat. His special chair-bearer saw to it that a chair was there to receive him.

Cecil B. DeMille, I guess, is the most spectacular of all the Hollywoodians living today and certainly one of the greatest of the movie makers. I have admired him these many years and, when I lived in Hollywood, been amazed by him.

When he appeared before the senate labor committee to testify about proposed labor legislation, I was on hand to write a dispatch. He was gracious and he was sauve, has baldspot was colored caramel by the California sunshine, and he made a persuasive witness. Only something was wrong. Something missing. Took me a while to spot it.

* * *

NO PUTTEES. The mighty DeMille, who directs 10,000 people and 1,000 elephants in the morning and spends the afternoon planting a redwood forest on the roof of a found stage, was wearing a plain blue pants with coat to match. This was something I'd never seen before.

Friends, I'm sorry if you want to know what he said about labor unions. I'm going to tell you about his octopus and, if there's room, about that cottage cheese overcoat of Miss Colbert.

The script said Ray Millan had to wrestle an octopus. "Well don't just stand there, DeMille told his retinue. "Get an octopus."

He got one and it was a beaut. The experts in the Paramount prop department spent $75,000 building a special octopus of sponge rubber, with brass pistons for innards, 700 miles of electric wiring for a nervous system and big blue eyes.

* * *

HIDDEN CABLES connected this magnificent beast to an organ console. It was my pleasure to watch DeMille play upon the keyboard, causing his octopus to roll its eyes and wrap 14 hands and 20 red feet around his actor at the bottom of a waterless set.

The jelling of Miss Colbert I did not actually get to see; it was before my time, but she told me about it. She was (as I remember) the Queen of Sheba being glorified in the original marble bath tub of DeMille.

"A milk bath," she reported. "Genuine milk. Seven hundred gallons of it straight from the refrigerators. They poured it into the pool and I climbed in, but I couldn't act on account of my teeth chattering."

DeMille ordered up the studio fire engine, kept with fire burning for such emergencies, and turned the steamline into the milk.

"It bubbled and gurgled and soon got warm," Miss Colbert continued. "I was splashing around in it, but the more I splashed the harder this became to do and Mr. DeMille got angry because I soon was moving in slow motion. I yelled for help. I was stuck in 700 gallons of Schmierkase. Then Mr. DeMille apologized.

Yes sir, I honestly believe he is a great man. I hope there'll always be a chair waiting when he decides to sit. And better listeners than me when he testiifes on labor legislation.

Things About People

WINCHELLEBRITIES: Mary Kirk Brown (unmarried for 7 years) blushing like a bride as she breathlessly clutches a colyumist's lapel to report her latest wedding. "He is the only man I ever married," she said wistfully, "who really loves me!" . . . Wallace Beery holding hands with Mrs. Lindy (via her groom's permission) . . . Geoffrey Hellman (the N'Yker scribe) beaming over a blondish, harp-playing angel at the Chateau. That ain't no angel, bub; it's his wife, Daphne . . . Stella Ardler, the arctress, seen around town in several low-cut numbers that prove she need never play keddickter roles unless she wants to . . . Barney Ross, the champ, settling a fist-fight between two kid bootblacks on 52nd St . . . Arleen Whalen (whose latest role is a cowgal in "Ramrod") wearing a wide-open-spaces frock in the Cub . . . Margaret Truman bawling like a baby at "Street Scene."

Memos of a Midnighter: The Milton Berles' reconciliation (according to pals) was the direct result of a Sunday nighter's flash on their parting. "It sounded so terribly final," said Joyce, "that it scared us back to each other" . . . Carole Landis wires the gossips are wrong again—that distance is the only thing keeping them temporarily apart . . . Sam Goldwyn's alleged latest: "I ran into Moss Hart the other night. He was at my house for dinner" . . . Louis Prima's new Majestic platter (due soon) will be called: "Baciagaloop" (makes love on the stoop) . . . You'd swoon if you knew the various male screen idols who wear special-made girdles to fight their personal battles of the bulge.

* * *

Heroine: This, we believe, is the very first mention of her greatest role . . . It didn't come to the col'm from her, either . . . It came from an admirer in gov't service, who thinks it is about time future historians knew about it . . . This brave American woman started the first underground activity against Mussolini . . . While the world's capitals were receiving Mussolini's ambassadors (like social lions) this American gal was urging the common people of Italy to fight like tigers for liberty . . . Rickety planes (flying over the Alps at night) showered pamphlets on Italian cities . . . And the lone American darling, who defied the Duce (at the height of his power), is our magnificent actress, Ruth Draper.

WALTER LIPPMAN

Investments Vital

AFTER SOME more study, which he has promised to make, Senator Taft will, one may hope, wish to revise his Lincoln Day speech. For if this is meant to be a statement, or even a preview, of what he thinks American economic policy should be in the postwar period, then it is fair to say that it contains no hint of a suggestion that he has begun to face up to the hard facts of the situation. Yet, in the field of domestic policy, he is the most powerful individual in the United States.

"The problem of stability," he said, "seems to me to reset primarily on a continuing balance between competitive forces, a balance between taxes and government spending, a balance between wage levels and price levels, a balance between wages and consumption, a balance between agricultural and industrial income."

It is curious that he neglected to mention the need of a balance between savings and investment. Yet if there is one clear and certain lesson of the past 25 years, it is that when savings can no longer be invested profitably, and are not used in some other way, the whole economic system is thrown out of balance.

* * *

IN THE LAST quarter of 1946 investment, that is to say expenditures for new capital and equipment by American business, not counting agriculture was running at the rate of $14,000,000,000 annually. The question is how long can American business continue prudently and profitably to invest capital at this rate, and what happens to employment, to wages, to industrial and farm prices, when this capital expenditure tapers off?

That question is not easily answered, and no one can quarrel with Senator Taft for not having a glib answer. But to fail to ask the question, to appear to be unaware that there is such a question, is to be blind to experience and to the facts of life.

In the postwar period of the 20's purchases of new plant and equipment rose to their peak in 1929 at something over $9,000,000,000 and fell to a little over $2,000,000,000 in the depth of the depression in 1933. They never got much above $6,000,000,000 during the New Deal era until war production began after 1939.

* * *

TAFT'S problem, and the country's problem, is posed by the fact that if there is a serious decline from the present rate of private capital investment, a serious depression is as certain as anything can be.

How long then can American business continue to buy new plant and equipment at the present rate of 14 billion dollars annually?

No one can say exactly how long. But what is sure is that it cannot and will not be done indefinitely and continually.

In each established business the time must come when it has all the plant and all the equipment which it can use profitably to make the goods and services it has a reasonable prospect of selling. Then unless there are great new enterprises calling for capital investment, new areas to be opened up, built and developed, the capital will not be invested, and the whole national economy thrown out of balance.

That time of trouble will surely come within a relatively few years—perhaps not in three years but almost certainly within 10. It will come, that is to say, unless we are fully aware of it long in advance, and are prepared and resolved to deal with it before it comes.

CITY BRAWLS, THEFTS KEEP POLICE BUSY

2 Men Hurt In Fights, Three Attacked By Hoodlums.

Police were kept hopping last night and early today.

Two men were injured in fights. Three others were attacked by hoodlums. More than $125 in cash and jewelry was stolen.

Treated at Hospital.

Gene Derr, 150 West Third street, was treated at General hospital for stab wounds in the stomach. Thomas J. Groves, 31, Bucyrus R. D. 4, has been charged by Derr with cutting with intent to wound. The case will be heard Monday.

Andred Dent, rear 274 North Franklin avenue, said he was struck in the head by another North Franklin avenue man. Seven stitches were taken in a cut over Dent's left eye.

Joseph Daniels, 267 North Adams street, told police he was attacked by three men in Lundy's lane. They stole $13, he said.

George Davy, 415 Lincoln avenue, and Steve Halvatz, 287 North Main street, reported attacks by a man on North Main street. No valuables were taken from them. A Marshall avenue man is being held for questioning in connection with the attack on Halvatz.

Cleaning Plant Robbed.

Police today also are investigating a reported theft of $70 from the Fusco Cleaning plant, Glessner avenue. The money was reported stolen from billfolds and a cash drawer.

Earl Kidwell and Fred Hout, 345 Springmill street, told police that $30 in cash and a $15 wrist watch were stolen from their room.

Police said thieves broke into the Consumers Petroleum company, Park avenue east, and stole a small, undetermined amount of change. The Cement Products company, in the same building, also was entered, police said.

TWO INJURED IN CAR MISHAPS IN CITY AREA

A. G. Price, 47, of 71 Glenwood boulevard, suffered multiple bruises and a deep skull laceration when he was struck by a car early today on Park avenue east, police reported.

Price was tossed into the air and against the car's windshield, officers said. He was treated at General hospital and released.

Police said the driver of the car, William Bell, jr., 22, of 704 Park avenue east, was charged with operating an auto with inadequate brakes. He is to be in traffic court Wednesday.

The accident occurred about 2 a. m. Police said the left side of the car's windshield was smashed. Price was first thrown onto the car's hood and then into the windshield, officers said.

Six-year-old Donna Faye Aurand of Ontario, suffered minor body and head abrasions yesterday afternoon when she walked into the path of a car driven by Hugh O. Allison, 61, of Mt. Gilead.

State patrolmen said the accident occured in Ontario as the child attempted to cross the street alone on her way home from school. Officers said Allison was almost stopped by the time the car hit the child.

The little girl was treated at General hospital.

Two motorists were booked on traffic charges following accidents yesterday. David J. Thomas, 41, of Crestline was charged with failing to stop within an assured clear distance, police said. They said his car was involved in a collision with one driven by Tolman Burns, 53 Linden road.

Sunny Dunn, 32, of 10 Grandview avenue, was charged with failing to yield right-of-way. Police said his car collided with one driven by Russell M. Kalis, 388 Springmill street. Kalis's car then struck one driven by Paul E. Lantz, 79 Massa avenue, officers said.

Thomas and Dunn both were ordered to appear in traffic court Wednesday.

TYGERS TO MEET FREMONT IN OPENER

SANDUSKY—Mansfield Senior and Madison high schools drew tough first round opposition while Shelby got a bye in pairings for the 1947 district Class A basketball tournament here this morning.

Madison battles Sandusky and Senior high meets Fremont Ross in the second set of first round games, Feb. 27. Opening games on Feb. 26 pits Ashland against Port Clinton and Willard against Tiffin Columbian.

Norwalk, Tiffin Calvert, Bellevue and Shelby drew first round byes.

Ashland's strong quintet was seeded No. 1, Mansfield Senior high No. 2, Norwalk No. 3, and Bellevue No. 4.

Fremont defeated Senior high during the regular season, 37 to 31.

DISLIKES NOISE

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS) Jacob Watson, 63, a San Francisco landlord, was held in jail on murder charges today after he allegedly shot to death two of his tenants because they staged "noisy parties."

CONGRATULATIONS—Congratulations were in order last night when the new presidents of the Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' club were announced. Following the banquet Gov. Thomas J. the mysteries of a successful life and offered a pattern for finding contentment in what he described as a nation living under too much tension.

"The story of Aladdin's lamp fades into significance in comparison with our free enterprise system, yet there are people who would ditch it, redistribute the wealth, and see the world come tumbling down," Dr. Peale said.

"We are bringing out wealth in greater abundance now than ever before and we even have to help warm the Socialists of Great Britain.

"Let the government keep its hands off and give industry and labor a chance to clean their own houses. If that happens, the sky's the limit and men with vision can climb to the stars.

"Positive thinking is the art of living yet we are living in a generation of negative thinking.

"Great men think in the future Last Saturday I saw Thomas A. Edison's old desk opened, and over many of the pigeonholes in its Edison had marked: 'New Things.' He died at 84 looking to a future of new and wonderful things.

"Tension is the greatest disease in the country today. We are nervous, jittery. A year and a half after the war ended we are just getting started because we couldn't settle things on a rational basis. We got mad instead.

"The American people need peace in their souls. A cyclone gets its great power from a calm center So do men and nations."

The crowd hailed Peale as one of the most inspiring speakers ever heard in Mansfield.

Richland county's own Louis Bromfield said he considered the Mansfield community "one of the greatest in the world," explaining that was why he's written about it so much.

Bromfield called for a closer community feeling between Mansfield and Richland county, pointing out that Mansfield is reaching out into the county on all sides.

* * *

Bromfield Sees Unity.

"The city is gradually becoming Richland county, and I believe the day will come soon when the city and county will think as one community."

President Weaver of the Ohio C. of C. lauded Mansfield for its impressive showing at the dinner.

"When we see more than 1,400 doing a good job and happy about it, we know that good government and good business are here. We need not fear any man when we work together."

"This is a moving scene tonight," said Hershel C. Atkinson, executive vice president of the Ohio Chamber. "It was brought about by cooperation and a spirit of citizenship that is sweeping the country."

Major Roy W. Vaughn commended the C. of C. for its progressive program during the past year and for attaining a membership of 1,150 to top all Chambers in the Mansfield population class.

Reese Mills, retiring president of the C. of C., was master of ceremonies. He introduced nearly a score of past presidents of the C of C. and Manufacturers club and a number of other guests on the speakers' platform.

The Owens-Corning Fiberglass company glee club of Newark entertained the big crowd. The mixed choral group of 76 members was under the direction of Herman Larson, director of music at Denison university.

Two groups of Mansfield entertainers, the Barber Shop Quartet and Troubadours, added color and comedy to the program.

Rev C. A. Portz, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, gave the invocation.

* * *

Capping the evening's efficiently-handled program was the coat and hat check system. Many persons commented on the lack of a "traffic jam" or delay at the coat rooms.

When the last garments were returned to their owners, however, these things had been left behind: three men's hats, two dark and one grey; a woman's belt, and a pipe. Owners may get them at the C. of C. offices in the Farmers Bank building.

* * *

Served In 26 Minutes.

Fourteen hundred and 50 guests, including the 76 members of the Owens-Corning company chorus, Mansfield police and Red Cross personnel were served their meals piping hot from electric roasters in 26 minutes! Between 95 and 100 waitresses and servers were employed for the Herculean task. The work was directed by Edward D. Sutter and R. R. Hayes, co-chairmen of the food committee.

Former N-J Staffmen Stage Homecoming at C. of C. Meet

By MARGUERITE MILLER

It was just like homecoming around the press table at the Chamber of Commerce dinner last night.

Eight former News-Journal editors and reporters—one of them directly responsible for the success of the biggest Chamber dinner in the state—got together and talked over old times.

Congratulated was John M. Schroeder, former city editor, who headed the publicity committee for the dinner which drew 1,450 persons. Schroeder is now director of public relations at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company.

The one fellow who had a little trouble staying at the table was John W. Graham, former N-J general manager, whose friends seemed to beckon from every corner. Graham, who frequently returns to Mansfield on visits, is now general manager of the West Virginia Publishing company, publisher of the Dominion News and the Morgantown Post, Morgantown, W. Va. He drove back to Morgantown last night.

Only other former N-J staffmen in the crowd who stuck with the typewriter were Reed D. Smith, now with the Associated Press, and Joseph Kuebler, business and industrial editor of the Akron-Beacon Journal.

Smith, who is one of the best-known newsmen in the state, now covers the Ohio senate for AP. He was with the N-J from 1930 to 1937.

Kuebler, who is credited with knowing more about the rubber industry than any other editor in the country, served as city editor for seven years, leaving here in 1940. Both Smith and Kuebler were covering the dinner meeting.

Phil Linne and Edward Schrack, former reporters, are now with the Owens-Corning Fiberglass company in Newark, whose mixed chorus of 76 voices was the entertainment highlight of the evening.

Others at the table were R. D. Lindsay, former managing editor, and Edward E. Stevens, former city editor. Lindsay is now with the sales promotion department at Westinghouse, and Stevens is assistant general sales manager of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company.

CITY STUDIES SIX LAND BIDS

Mansfield has been offered amounts ranging from $1,500 to $8,175 for two acres of land on Longview avenue, Service-Safety Director E. L. Morgan said today.

Six bids on the property were opened yesterday and will be considered for acceptance early next week, probably Tuesday, Morgan said.

Highest bidder was J. H. Bookmyer, Bucyrus, $8,175.25. Next highest bid was that of John Willis, Richwood, $7,225.

Other bids were submitted by Malo Brothers, Galion, $6,675.25; Commercial Scrap Metal company, Mansfield, $6,310; Purdy Investment company, Mansfield, $2,603, and the Empire Steel corporation, $1,500. With certain restrictions lifted, Morgan said the steel corporation would increase its bid by $500.

The property is west of the Pennsylvania railroad right-of-way, east of Lakeview avenue and is bounded by Longview avenue on the south, Morgan said. It extends 565 feet from Longview.

A pumphouse and well are located on the property. The city will retain the well rights if the property is sold, the director said.

Mrs. Rinehart Dies In City

Mrs. Nellie M. Rinehart died early today at her home, 376 North Townview circle, after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Rinehart was born near Mansfield and spent her entire life in this vicinity. She was a member of the First Christian church.

She is survived by her husband, A. D. Rinehart; a sister, Mrs. Jessie Race of Mansfield, and several nephews and nieces.

The body is at the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Monday at 1:30 p. m., with Rev. Ben F. Hagelbarger officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Up and Down The Street

LEARNS ABOUT STUMPS—

Tree stumps will no longer stump Park Supt. Frank Burton. At a parks association meeting in Columbus this week, Burton said he picked up some useful "stump-formation." He plans to put it to work in city parks. It saves money—and energy, he said. A certain type of acid is used to destroy the stump's "innards." Then it can be removed easily. Holes are drilled in the top of the stump and acid inserted. At the end of a year's time the stump crumbles. Whereas it take some $40 or $50 to remove a stump by man-power, the acid method does it for a few dollars, he said.

REVEALS SECRET—

Speaking at the Chamber of Commerce dinner last night, Gov. Thomas J. Herbert said that he has been interested in Mansfield's new airport "for a long time." With a chuckle, too, he reminded his audience that he attended the port's dedication last July. "But I don't know whether many of you knew I was there or not," he said, with a wry smile. Herbert then was a candidate for the governorship. The governor said his interest in Mansfield's air facilities dates back a number of years. He used to fly old National Guard planes down from Cleveland "when there wasn't even a runway out there," he said. The governor said he traveled to the C. of C. dinner by air.

* * *

JUST OLD FRIENDS—

A couple of "Toms" shook hands in Mansfield last night, and one of them may still be wondering how the other knew his first name. When Gov. Thomas J. Herbert was going to the coliseum for the Chamber of Commerce dinner, he ran onto Police Patrolman Tom Hempfield, who was handling traffic. Some of the men with the governor recognized the patrolman and told the governor his name was Tom, too. So Gov. "Tom" Herbert walked up to Patrolman Tom Hempfield with outstretched hand and said "Hello, Tom." It was a puzzled and pleased officer who returned the greeting.

City Clears Last of Snow From Streets

A new system was inaugurated yesterday when the weather and the street department teamed up to remove the last of the snow from downtown Mansfield.

Street workers, using a grader, power loader, and four trucks, hauled the snow and slush away from curbs where scores of cars have been sticking since last week.

Parking meters were "hooded" in the areas to be cleaned. As soon as the snow was picked up the hoods were removed from the meters and cars permitted to park again in the cleaned areas.

Street Supt C. H. Hebel said the meter hooding system has been contemplated for some time. Arrival of 50 new hoods permitted it to be put into operation yesterday. The new system will be used on subsequent snow removal projects, he said.

Police Check 10th 'Slot' Gang Death

CHICAGO (INS) Police today investigated the tenth slot machine gang killing in recent months in the Chicago area. The latest victim was John Golding, 47, identified as slot machine operator.

Golding was shot five times by two gunmen who pumped five .45 caliber bullets into his body as he sat in his parked automobile.

EXHIBITS SHOW WAYS TO SPEED DAILY CHORES

Show By Ohio State College of Agriculture Attracts Rural Residents.

Eleven hundred Richland county rural residents inspected the Ohio Farm and Home Labor Saving show yesterday at Young's Implement store and took home many ideas to make work around the farm a little easier.

Sponsored jointly by the college of agriculture of Ohio State university and the county extension service the show opened to a waiting crowd at 10 a. m. and closed at 4 p. m.

While extent of the show's influence is impossible to estimate, officials felt that the purpose—"to stimulate thinking in terms of saving time and labor"—had been achieved.

Home department interests centered on kitchen space savers and demonstrations of ironing and overall patching. The demonstrations were given by Mrs. Kathryn Cowgill and Mrs. Dorothy King of the Farm Home administration.

The model milk house, hay drying system and egg cleaning exhibit also attracted much attention.

Many Give Aid.

Mrs. Olive Forbes, Bellville; Mrs. Elmer Snavely near Lexington and Mrs. Carl Dill of Franklin township assisted with the shirt ironing demonstrations.

Explaining the other home exhibits were Mrs. Martha Frank, Franklin township; Mrs. Victor Stine, near Shelby; Mrs. Jack Stotts, Little Washington; Mrs. Dale Harding, Mrs. Lester Tupps and Mrs. Calvin Beach of Sandusky township.

Charles Clingan, Weller township, Gail Hammett, Route 545 north; Richard and William Wolford, Madison township; C. E. Young, C. E. Young, jr., Melvin Amstutz of the Young Implement store and the vocational agriculture boys of Union rural high school aided in setting up the exhibit.

The vocational agriculture boys of Lexington high school helped load the exhibits at the close of the show.

E. A. Silver of the Agriculture College at Ohio State was in charge of the show. Eight men and three women from the university accompanied the show to Mansfield.

The show, touring Ohio since Jan. 3 moved to Mt. Vernon last night where it will open to Knox county farmers Monday.

SHILOH PLAYS COUNTY CHAMPS

Butler, Richland county league champions, drew Shiloh in the first round of the annual county basketball tournament which opens Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Mansfield Senior high gym.

The Butler team won 14 straight league contests and was seeded No. 1 in the draw-for-position meeting today at County Superintendent of Schools Boyd Robinson's office.

Bellville plays Ontario in the second game Tuesday. Lexington meets Union and Plymouth plays Lucas in the two games on Wednesday's card. Lexington was seeded No. 2, Bellville No. 3 and Plymouth No. 4.

Semi-final games will be played Thursday night beginning at 7:30 with the championship contest scheduled Saturday at 9 p. m. A consolation contest will precede the title game Saturday at 8 p. m.

Two tournament finalists will be eligible for district Class B tournament which starts at Bascom, Feb. 27.

WARM WEATHER DESERTS OHIO

Warm, sunny weather made its exit today, with the weatherman predicting that normal winter conditions are returning to Ohio.

Predictions forecast occasional light rain, possibly changing to snow for northern Ohio. Cooler weather for the entire state is expected tonight.

Mercury readings were still generally above normal this morning. They were expected to drop to the 25-28 mark tonight.

The mercury went down to 25 at Zanesville making it lowest in the state. Yesterday's high was 60 at Chesapeake. Mansfield high yesterday was 49, the low 33.

COUPLE ORDERED TO OBEY SCHOOL LAWS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zornes, Mansfield, R. D. 3, both charged with contributing to the delinquency of their 2 children, aged 6 and 7, because of school truancy, today were ordered to keep the youngsters in school.

Convicted of the charges in juvenile court, the parents won suspension of court costs as the case was continued pending an investigation into transportation of the children to their school.

In another case, Paul Livingston, 234 East First street, charged with non-support of his 23-month-old daughter, agreed to pay his wife $30 per week. The court confirmed the agreement.

Ohio State Hands Fesler 5-Year Contract

By JOHN BARRINGTON

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Damon and Pythias were rejoined at Ohio State university today with the naming of Wesley Eugene Fesler as head football coach.

The university board announced its approval last night of unofficial negotiations between Fesler, Athletic Director L. W. St. John and Director-to-be Dick Larkins.

The appointment still must undergo the formality of submission to the board of trustees March 3.

Fesler was handed a five-year contract, the longest ever given a Buck football coach.

While salary terms were not disclosed, it was intimated that the former All-American end will start at $13,500.

Fesler replaced Paul O. Bixler, who resigned to become Colgate university coach.

The new Buck mentor was to resign formally today as coach at the University of Pittsburgh.

With appointment of Fesler, the paths of two Buck sports immortals crossed again.

Fesler and Larkins played side by side in the Ohio State lineup in the 1928-30 period. Their friendship has added a dramatic sidelight to negotiations for the grid coaching post.

That same friendship has caused speculation over its effect should Fesler's path prove rocky. Many observers contended Larkins would be placed squarely on the spot should the "wolves" climb on Fesler.

Fesler planned to begin work at once on plans for spring practice.

He needed also to round out his staff of assistants. Assured he would have a free hand in selecting his aides, Fesler already has named two Pittsburgh staffers to his Ohio State crew. Lyal Clark will be line coach while former Buck star Dick Fisher will have a backfield tutor's job.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Never before has an Ohio State coach received a contract of the length given Wes Fesler. Previously, three-year "gentlemen's agreements" have been the most an incoming coach could expect.

The new coach said he was anxious to get to work, because he hoped to meet his squad Wednesday, and begin conditioning drills in the gymnasium prior to the start of spring practice about March 25.

Fesler will follow the practice he adopted at Pitt in scheduling his practice sessions down to the minute. The coaching staff will meet each morning, after which a "work sheet" will be posted in the locker room, telling what every player and every coach will do at each minute of the day's workout.

His basic concept of football revolves around the single-wing offense, but incorporates plenty of "T"-formation ideas. He used a five-man line defensively at Pitt with great success.

Fesler indicated that the idea, which stopped Ohio State's ground attack cold last season, would be implanted here. "These teams aren't going to run wild on us," he promised.

"I promise that I am going to work extremely hard to get the backing of the entire state," Fesler told newsmen.

He closed his interview with a statement that he knew there would be no bitterness at Pitt over his departure.

"All the people in Pittsburgh, at the university, on the newspapers and radio, alumni and non alumni, and especially the players, were wonderful to me. Only the strong pulling force of the opportunity to go home could cause me to leave such kindness," he said.

Tygers Trip Tigers; Rams Host To A's

'WHIP' MAJORS SPARKS TYGERS WITH 15 POINTS

By FRED THARP
(N-J Sports Editor)

MASSILLON — Ralph "Whip" Majors lifted the Mansfield Senior high Tygers by their bootstraps here last night to give them a convincing 52 to 44 victory over Massillon Washington high school.

Majors has gained most of his fame this year as an artist of the backboards but blossomed out as quite a point-producer last night, much to the chagrin of the Massillon hoopsters. The "Whip" swished 15 points through the mesh, nine in the wold third quarter when the remainder of the Mansfield cast could not find a semblance of the range.

Rebound Man.

Known chiefly as a fellow to be reckoned with on rebounds, Majors had averaged only 5.4 points in the Tygers' first 18 encounters. His previous high total of 11 came earlier this week as he led the Bengals to a 45 to 36 win over Lorain.

Tommy Bloor and Nick Gagich helped tremendously in the point department with 12 apiece as Coach Vern Hoffman's proteges won their 13th victory in 19 games. They picked up five buckets in the wild-scoring fourth quarter.

Massillon, which was known as an in-and-out ball club was strictly "out" with the first team in there. In fact, Coach Bud Houghton used his regulars only in the first and fourth quarters.

Easy Pickings.

Hoffman's lads found the Washington high regulars easy pickings and romped to a 12 to 5 lead in the first period and outscored them in the fourth, 18 to 14. Guard Bob Link scored Massillon's first field goal as the buzzer sounded ending the first period.

Houghton's seconds lacked the finesse of the first club but were able to break loose and connect on shots from all over the court. That seems to be the most important single item in basketball and it took the reformed "bench-warmers" just four minutes to pass the Tygers, 17 to 16.

Mansfield managed to pull ahead at the half, 22 to 20, and thanks to Majors' fine work increased the advantage to 34 to 30 as the final heat started.

The Tygers were not too sharp from the gratis line, making only eight of 22 attempts. However, they made 22 of 74 tries from the court for a respectable 29.7 per cent. Massillon connected on six of 14 free throws.

Cats Meet Leading Wisconsin Quintet

CHICAGO —(AP)— Northwestern, basketball team, which has knocked off Iowa and Purdue on the Chicago Stadium floor, will try to derail league-leading Wisconsin tonight before upwards of 17,500 fans.

De Paul's Blue Demons, who upset Kentucky a week ago, face Bradley in the second game of the Stadium twin bill.

While Wisconsin tries for its eighth Big Nine victory in nine games, Indiana goes to Illinois, Michigan to Iowa and Purdue to Minnesota to round out tonight's card of four conference tests.

Butler Takes 14th Win In County Cage League

BELLVILLE—Butler's rampaging Bulldogs concluded their 1946-47 Richland county basketball schedule without a defeat by downing a hard-fighting Bellville aggregation here last night, 34 to 28.

The Bulldogs romped through 14 games without a defeat and received their toughest test last night. Butler cascaded 675 points through the hoop in league games for an average of 48.2 per game.

Butler moved into a 10 to 6 lead at the quarter and led at the other intermission points, 18 to 15 and 30 to 19.

The Bulldog Puppies won the reserve fracas, 24 to 22.

Madison lost to Mt. Vernon 55 to 28, and Shelby 32 to 16. Earlier in the season the Rams topped Shelby 31 to 23. Ashland has lost only to Norwalk 49 to 43 and Mansfield's Tygers 47 to 39. The Taylor Tots defeated Shelby, 39 to 35 and Senior high, 49 to 43.

Tallest Team.

Ashland will have a considerable heighth advantage on Madison. Dave Burns, Dick Messner and Don Drebus all hover around the six foot mark. Drebus, Ashland pivotman, is the tallest at six foot, two inches.

Messner is one of the best cagers in the state and only a junior. He creased the nets for 24 points in the two games against Mansfield.

DeHaven is counting heavily on Herb Eldridge and Eldon Pritchard for the Rams offensive power. Eldridge is leading the Madison scoring with 158 points for a 11.7 average. Pritchard is second with 137 tallies.

Madison's probable lineup will have Eldridge and Pritchard, forwards; Bob Wilson, center; and Dick Ernsberger and Dick Poth, guards.

Probable Taylor Tot starters are: Burns and Messner, forwards; Drebus, center; and Bob Harpster and Dick Cooper, guards.

Madison's reserve team meets the Ashland Jayvee's at 7:15.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

One of the classic stories to come out of the last war involved Dr. Wellington Koo and a diamond-in-the rough American Brigadier General.

The general, visiting London, was invited to an official banquet and, somewhat to his embassessment, found himself seated next to a Chinese citizen for the first time in his life. He did not know, of course, that the Chinese citizen was Dr. Koo, a graduate of Columbia university and Oxford, and one of the most erudite people in the world.

The general devoted himself assiduously to the party on his left but later felt that he must make at least one remark to Dr. Koo.

As the waiters were removing the soup dishes, the general cleared his throat and asked, "Likee soupee?"

Dr. Koo was surprised but took it in stride. He said nothing, but nodded his head vigorously and smiled. Later, while liquers were being served, Dr. Koo was called upon to speak. He rose and spoke brilliantly for ten minutes, while the general fidgeted more and more uncomfortably in his seat.

As he sat down, Dr. Koo turned to the general. "Likee speechee?" he inquired sweetly.

BRITISH NOW WINNING FUEL CRISIS FIGHT

Ban On Use of Electricity Continue Despite Gains Against Coal Blockade.

LONDON (AP)— Britain appeared today to be slowly winning her critical peacetime "battle of the power stations."

A government spokesman said cautiously, "There are signs that we have turned the corner," as trains and ships loaded with coal broke an icy blockade to ease the fuel famine that has shut down thousands of factories and reduced the consumption of electricity in millions of homes since Monday.

Officials emphasized, however, that no date yet was in sight for lifting the government ban on domestic use of electricity for five hours daily in all England, Scotland and Wales and the total embargo on industrial use in 38 English and Welsh counties.

While shivering Britons hoped for a break in the freezing weather that has prevailed for most of the last five weeks, these were the principal developments in the all-out struggle to get coal to the nation's power plants:

(1) More than a quarter of a million miners and railwaymen volunteered to work Sunday to dig and transport coal. Even during the war the majority of miners didn't work Sundays.

(2) The special "coal cabinet" headed by Prime Minister Attlee reported that shipment of coal by sea was nearly back to last fall's level. Rail shipments were up, too; 212 coal trains reached London in the 48-hour period ended at 6 a. m. yesterday. Early in the week few trains got through the snowdrifts.

(3) The restriction on the use of household electricity was reduced to four and a half hours for tomorrow to allow more time for Sunday cooking. The five-hour ban will be in effect again Monday, however.

(4) The "coal cabinet" deferred until Monday action on its warning that gas may have to be stopped for all non-essential industries in Britain.

(5) The authoritative financial Times said its survey of industries disclosed that production losses of between $800,000 and $100,000,000 would result from the first week's embargo on factory electricity and that such losses would grow each week the stoppage continued.

another problem ably handled by the Boy Scouts.

Food, Swiss steak and fish, was probably the outstanding "logistics" feat. "Ed" Sutter, "Bob" Hayes and their men kept the "eats" coming fast and hot, direct from on-the-scene roasters.

Everything had to be virtually timed to the second—and there was no delay. The four and one-half hour program bogged down not once.

Van Derau emphatically insisted that "cooperation did it—cooperation of the entire chamber."

Van Derau's colleagues in promoting what has been described as the most successful and largest dinner meeting ever to be held in Mansfield included:

O. C. McCormick, R. M. Calene, J. A. Herbert and Paul M. Eliot. They composed the general committee.

Other committee members were: food, R. R. Hayes, Kenneth Strock, W. M. Miller, W. O. Park, Edward Sutter and Charles Hayes; location and facilities, H. W. Dailey, L. S. Houk, John G. Routzon, E. L. Walters, Frank Elias, Clyde Smaltz, E. L. Morgan and D. M. Weaver;

Speakers, Reese Mills, and John G. Routzon; special guests, Routzon, Mills and Van Derau; reception, Orlo Smith and O. C. McCormick; tickets and finance, Eliot and C. J. Solomon; entertainment, R. F. Bisbee, Calene, Phil Linne, John Grabler, M. W. Stretch and F. F. Forshee;

Publicity, John M. Schroeder, J. G. Baird, W. C. Peterson, Ken Woodman, R. G. Hiett, J. M. O'Hara, and Robert Horn.

Probably the evening's outstanding musical event was the appearance of the 76-voice, male-female choral group of the Owens-Corning Glass company.

Songs that brought back memories to the dinner's "oldsters" were sung by the "Barber Shop Quartet." It included, R. A. Starrett, L. E. Chamberlain, G. G. Rodey and H. H. Clingan. M. W. Stretch was pianist.

Lending a south-of-the-border aire were the "Troubadours." They included John Grabler, accordion; Frank Dekrell, violin; John Hrivnak, guitar, and Harold Wise, bass viol.

The fourth musical group included an instrumental trio from the glass company. There also was organ music by William Morrison and a community sing.

Memory Expert To Address Club

Dr. Bruno Furst, memory expert, will entertain Rotary club members, and their ladies at the club's "ladies night" dinner-meeting Tuesday at 6:30 p. m., at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, with Edward Sutter as program chairman.

A former associate professor of psychology at Masaryk college, Prague, Czechoslovakia, Dr. Furst is the author of such books as "How To Use Your Head," and "How To Remember."

He is at present director of the Research Institute for Extra-sensory Perception at New York City.

Millersburg Fire Chief's Mother Dies

MILLERSBURG—Mrs. Catherine Barton, 89, died early today at the home of her son, Ralph Barton, with whom she made her home the last six years. She was the mother of Gordon Barton, chief of the Millersburg fire department.

Mrs. Barton was a member of the St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church of Millersburg. She was preceded in death by her husband, Howard Barton, who died in 1920.

She is survived by three sons, Ralph, Gordon, fire chief of the Millersburg fire department, and Fred of Canton; seven grandchildren and three sisters, Mrs. Louise Forsch, Detroit; Mrs. Clara Brewster, Huntington, Mass., Mrs. Nellie Schuler, Denver.

Funeral services will be Tuesday at 2 p. m. from the Elliott funeral home, Millersburg. Burial will be at Oakhill cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home.

MRS. DENVER SPRAGUE

SHELBY—Mrs. Denver Sprague, 52, died yesterday afternoon at Memorial hospital after a year's illness. Mrs. Sprague had been living recently at the home of her brother, Asa Hutt of Sharon township.

Mrs. Sprague and her husband lived in West Branch, Mich., for the last two years. She was born in Tiro on Feb. 4, 1895.

She leaves her husband, two brothers, Asa Hutt of Sharon township, and Ralph Hutt of Mansfield, and a sister, Mrs. Roscoe Artz, Shelby.

She was a member of the First Lutheran church, Shelby.

Services will be Monday at 2:30 p. m. at the Dye funeral home, with Rev. Bruce Young, pastor of the First Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

PAUL D. MOUROT

MT. GILEAD—Paul Damian Mourot, 88, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ernest Steed, in Cardington Friday afternoon after a six-week illness.

Mr. Mourot, born in France, had been a resident of Cardington for the past 12 years, coming there from Moundsville, W. Va. He was a retired glass blower and a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church at Cardington.

Surviving are his wife, Julia McGinnon Mourot; five daughters, Mrs. Steed, Mrs. George Luff of Bellaire, and Mrs. Loretta Cootz, Miss Ann Mourot and Mrs. Marguerite Richardson, all of Washington, D. C., and two sons, Dr. A. J. Mourot of Alexandria, Va., and E. A. Mourot of Pittsburgh.

Services will be held Monday at 9 a. m. at the St. Joseph's church in Cardington, with burial in the Glendale cemetery there.

MRS. EMMA M. GUMZ

LUCAS—Mrs. Emma M. Gumz, 62, died unexpectedly at the home of her son, Robert Gumz, east of Lucas, at 5:25 a. m. today.

Mrs. Gumz was born in Sweden on Jan. 26, 1885, and lived the greater part of her life in Superior, Wis., coming to the home of her son last September.

Besides the son, Robert, she is survived by her husband, Albert H. Gumz, also of Lucas; another son, C. William Gumz, and one daughter, Miss Marian Gumz, both of San Francisco, Calif.; two grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Albert Harvey of Duluth, Minn.

The body was removed to the Byerly funeral home here where arrangements are awaiting the arrival of the son and daughter from San Francisco.

RALPH G. KLECKNER

WILLARD—Ralph G. Kleckner, 58, of Tiffin, died suddenly while walking in front of the Smith Electric company here at 3 p. m. yesterday. Death was due to a heart attack, according to Dr. William Corwin of Willard, acting Huron county coroner.

Mr. Kleckner was a traveling salesman for the Good Office Supply company of Tiffin. He is survived by his wife, Irma, and a daughter, Margery, both of Tiffin.

The body was taken to the Secor funeral home and later removed in the Bame ambulance to Tiffin, where services will be held Monday.

CAFE OPERATOR NAMED IN SUIT

Because a waitress allegedly pushed Henry J. Fisher, 230 Park avenue east, off a stool and broke Fisher's foot in two places, Karl W. Hering, doing business as The Elms, 294 South Diamond street, was named today in a $25,900 damage action.

Fisher's petition in common pleas court claims that "Peg" Elliott, the waitress, "intentionally and violently struck and pushed (him) with such force that he and the stool were upset and thrown to the floor, causing serious injury" to the plaintiff.

The petition, filed by Atty. Jacob Wagenhals, is an amendment to an original petition filed last Aug. 28.

Briefs

Pastor Speaks — Rev. Matthew G. Madden, pastor of the First Congregational church, will address Hermit club members at their meeting Monday at 6:30 p. m. at the YMCA. Russell Cline is program chairman.

Driver Booked — James F. Jones, 21, of 184 Oak street, a cab driver, was charged with failing to yield right-of-way yesterday and ordered to appear in traffic court Wednesday. Police said a Yellow Stripe company cab Jones was driving collided with a car driven by Charles D. Myers, 167 Hedges street.

Secretaries to Meet — Members of the Mansfield chapter, National Secretaries association, will hold their monthly meeting in Rooms 225 and 226, Mansfield-Leland hotel, Tuesday evening after a dinner at the hotel, Miss Helen Them, corresponding secretary announced today. A representative of the Ohio Bell Telephone company is to demonstrate a "voice mirror," device which allows a person to hear how his voice sounds over a telephone, Miss Them said.

Trucks Fail to Attract Bidders

Apparently nobody wants to buy a couple of 1934 Reo trucks which Mansfield has for sale.

They were put on the block yesterday but nobody bid on them, Service-Safety Director E. L. Morgan said.

Three persons submitted bids on a 1937 Plymouth car, however. They'll be considered for acceptance early next week.

Bidders, Morgan said, included J. E. Hink, $202; J. J. Conning, $115 and Glen Snider, $85.

Ladies Add Bit Of Spice to Gala Banquet

There was Mrs. W. H. Wolford with a feather trimmed hat topping her smart costume; Mrs. Ralph Bisbee, wife of the entertainment chairman, in wine color; Mrs. J. M. Barnett, hatless, but wearing a stunning frock of black with huge white flowers in a corsage on her left shoulder.

The affair last night pleased out-of-town women guests as well as those from Mansfield. Mrs. C. I. Weaver, wife of the president of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, was definite in her praise.

"It's astonishing," she said, "how the dinner could be served so quickly and so hot, and beautifully served, too!"

With Mrs. Weaver was Mrs. Albert Redman, whose husband heads the industrial developments division of the Ohio Chamber.

"I never saw so many people eating at the same time," she declared, "and the food is delicious."

ASH WEDNESDAY RITES TO OPEN LENTEN SEASON

Mansfield Churches Schedule Services Next Week.

By NITA BRANSON
(News-Journal Church Editor)

Ash Wednesday will be observed in a number of Mansfield churches next week. It will mark the beginning of Lent, and the beginning of sacrifice and preparation for the observance of Easter.

Although the penitential ceremony of the ashes will be observed only in Grace Episcopal and St. Peter's Catholic churches, other churches will recognize the rite of Penitence through prayer and worship.

At Grace Episcopal, the beginning of the Lenten season will be observed Tuesday night with a parish-wide dinner which will be served by the men's club of the church.

Holy Communion at 7 a. m. will begin the Wednesday services at the Grace Episcopal church. They will continue with Rev. Samuel U. J. Peard reading the penitential office and conducting the "Services of the Ashes" in the chapel at 10:30 a. m. Holy Communion will follow the penitential services. At 8 p. m. the Litany will be read by the pastor and he will preach his first Lenten sermon.

HOUSE MAKING GOOD PROGRESS, SPEAKER FINDS

COLUMBUS — (UP) — House Speaker C. William O'Neill (R-Marietta) took a quick look at the six weeks record of the state legislature today and said he was pleased.

O'Neill, the youngest representative to be elected head of the house, said he was still hopeful of an early adjournment but admitted that the budget will cause some delay.

Problem Ahead.

He said the state finance department and Gov. Thomas J. Herbert have a tremendous problem in shaping the budget for the 1947-48 biennium.

The finance director has received requests for close to $600,000,000—which must be cut down to the administration and house estimate of $422,000,000 revenue in the biennium, O'Neill said.

So far the legislature has passed only one bill—the partial appropriations measure—but organization of the senate and house have been completed and the next legislative week is expected to head full steam into the enactment of a tax program.

The house taxation committee has scheduled hearings on nine bills for Feb. 18-19 while in the senate hearings will be held Feb. 19 on two minor tax revision measures. The legislature is in adjournment until Monday.

2 BOYS CONVICTED IN KIDNAPING CASE

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — (AP) — A federal jury here has convicted two Nashville, Tenn., youths on charges of kidnaping an aged Ohio couple, but the pair, Henry Black, jr., 17, and Albert Webester, 14, were assured they would not be sentenced to death.

Judge Luther Swygert, upon hearing the jury's verdict convicting them of kidnaping Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sherrick of Convoy, O., with whom they were riding last October near Van Wert, O., set the sentencing date for Feb. 24. He earlier had eliminated the possibility of a death sentence after doctors told the judge that both boys were mentally subnormal and unable to distinguish right from wrong.

John Simpson News Notes

By JOHN DAMRON

During the noon hours of the past month intramural basketball tournaments have been played in the gym. More than 30 home room teams have been competing for the championship.

The competition has been whittled down to about three teams in each of the three grades. These teams are all trying for the championship of their grade. The grade champions will play for the school basketball championship after which the ninth grade winners will play the Simpson Varsity squad.

* * *

Three new students from out of town have registered in Simpson during the past two weeks. They are Dan Schulte from Butler, Reed Black from Loudonville, and Kenneth Krause of Zanesville.

* * *

The editorial staff of the John Simpson Times has added five new members. The seventh graders are Warren Worthley, Chuck Davison, and Lynne Hartley. The eighth graders are Tom Hansberger and Tresa Fama.

* * *

The Tyger Booster club has donated a trophy to Simpson for winning the Junior High basketball championship.

Jesus at the Feast of Tabernacles — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—John 7-9. By Alfred J. Buescher

Jesus went secretly to the Feast of the Tabernacles in Jerusalem and taught in the temple, albeit the Pharisees sought to kill Him. Hearing Him, people said, "Is not this He, whom they seek to kill? But, lo, He speaketh boldly, and they say nothing unto Him. Do the rulers know indeed that He is the very Christ?"

Some of Jesus' enemies would have taken Him, but no one did, and the rulers asked why? The officers answered, "Never man spake like this man." And Nicodemus, who had visited Jesus by night, asked, "Doth our law judge any man before it hear him, and know what he doeth?"

In the Mount of Olives the scribes and Pharisees brought to Jesus a woman taken in adultery, tempting Him, and thinking they might accuse Him. Jesus stooped and wrote on the ground, till then He rose and said, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her." None did but slunk away.

Jesus saw a man who had been blind from birth, and He made a clay and anointed the man's eyes and told him to go wash in the pool of Siloam, which he did and received his sight. It was on a Sabbath day Jesus did this, and the people took the man to the Pharisees.
